Many people burn the candle of life at both ends. Some men who never go into vicious dissipation use up their energies just as much by overwork or late hours; and nearly all women are compelled by circumstances to use up their vital powers beyond all reason. It may be in housework; or social demands; or the bearing and rearing of children. At any rate the candle of life is too rapidly consumed.

Some people need to have their natural vigor constantly reinforced in the same proportion that it is used up. They need the fortifying help of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mr. Stanley maintains that the common and highly useful tendency of the very young to open the mouth to all stimuli, visual, aural, etc., continues as a survival in after life, being especially brought out with stimuli of high intensity and unusual quality and thus becomes a mark of surprise and astonishment. It is a habit very common among boys and girls to open the mouth under any attention. The rise of smiling and laughter as connected with wit and humor—at the basis of which lies surprise—thus declares itself as a kind of attention expression.

Assuming that the primary expression of the mouth is a feeding expression and that this probably has been modified and evolved in connection with a variety of attention phenomena, Mr. Stanley suggests that it would be worth while to make a detailed study of expression in infants and young animals with this point in view.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Every now and then one reads about the discovery of another of the famous 'diamond dollars' of 1804," said a gentleman of this city who owns one of the finest private collections of coins and medals in the south. "The dollars of that date are popularly supposed to be worth from $1,500 to $2,000 apiece, and if a few originals could be produced I dare say they would bring that figure easily enough. But it happens, unluckily, that there are only four on earth, and they are locked up in the vaults of the treasury building at Washington and couldn't be bought at any price. They are what are known as the 'test pieces,' which are always laid aside whenever a new coin is struck, and the rest of the issue is at this moment quietly reposing under several miles of deep blue sea. The true story is rather interesting. In 1804 the mint at Philadelphia is known to have turned out 19,570 silver dollars. That was the entire issue, barring the test pieces I have just spoken of, and it was never put into circulation. The whole lot, just as it came from the stamping presses, was dumped into an iron chest and put on board a merchantman bound for China. It was directed to the captain of a United States frigate then in oriental waters, and was intended to be used in paying certain expenses connected with the service. The merchantman ran into a Chinese typhoon and went to the bottom, where to the best of my information, it still remains, iron chest and all, and that is the reason your Uncle Sam is the only collector in the world who has a complete set of American dollars. Every other collection, including my own, is short one issue, and the gap will never be filled until the sea gives up its own."

"Do you mean to tell us, then," said a listener to the foregoing, "that all the 'diamond dollars' now in private cabinets are counterfeits?" "By no means," replied the collector. "I own an 1804 dollar myself, and there are at least three others, to my knowledge, in the south. They were issued by the government and are perfectly good and legal coins, but they are not originals. They are what are known technically as 'restrikes.' In the early days, when the mints had a few coins left over from one year to another, they would change the date by striking them with a special die, an operation that can always be detected by an expert. For some reason or other, nobody knows just why, a few dollars of the 1800 issue were restruck in 1804 and put in circulation. It is probable that the total number was not over 40 or 50, and a good many have been lost. The ones in existence are worth $150 apiece, and you may rest assured that all the 'diamond dollars' not mere imitations belong to this little lot of restrikes."

"Of course, some of them have been sold to green collectors as originals, and I was myself the innocent cause of such a transaction only a few years ago. A friend of mine, who lives in an adjoining state, and who owns a great many rare and beautiful coins, telephoned me one day asking whether $500 was too much for a genuine 1804 dollar. I took it for granted that he knew the facts about the issue, and after puzzling over the message for a considerable time concluded that it was an obscure joke of some kind and that I was simply too stupid to see the point. So I wired back advising him to buy a bushel at that figure, and he promptly closed the deal. It turned out afterward that the coin was a restrike, and my friend has never quite forgiven me. What deceived him was the fact that the piece was known positively to have been locked up in an old chest at Savannah since 1812. That did away with the counterfeit theory, and the only thing he was doubtful about was the price."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE OPEN MOUTH.

Said to Be a Survival of Babyhood Tendencies.

Hiram M. Stanley advances a new explanation of the tendency to open the mouth in surprise and astonishment. Darwin ascribed this tendency to the intuitive desire for quietness and effectiveness of breathing and to mere relaxation of the muscles. Mr. Stanley finds a deeper organic reason—namely, that the open mouth is the attention sign, and is a primitive and constant reaction with the young of many animals for the reception of food—for example, with birds.

Any sound or other stimulus immediately causes the young bird to extend its mouth. With young infants the same influence has often the same effect. The mouth of the infant under such stimulation usually assumes the sucking form, and its smile when the finger is pointed at it may be either a cent or degraded sucking.

Mr. Stanley maintains that the common and highly useful tendency of the very young to open the mouth to all stimuli, visual, aural, etc., continues as a survival in after life, being especially brought out with stimuli of high intensity and unusual quality and thus becomes a mark of surprise and astonishment. It is a habit very common among boys and girls to open the mouth under any attention. The rise of smiling and laughter as connected with wit and humor—at the basis of which lies surprise—thus declares itself as a kind of attention expression.

Assuming that the primary expression of the mouth is a feeding expression and that this probably has been modified and evolved in connection with a variety of attention phenomena, Mr. Stanley suggests that it would be worth while to make a detailed study of expression in infants and young animals with this point in view.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

State of Nevada, County of Washoe, I, B. C. Shearer, Recorder and ex-officio Auditor of Washoe county, Nevada, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the delinquent tax list for the first installment thereof for the year A. D. 1899, and published according to law.

Witness my hand and official seal at Reno, in said county, this 19th day of December, 1899.

(Seal.) B. C. SHEARER, Recorder and Ex-Officio Auditor, Washoe County, Nev.

Office of the Treasurer and Ex-Officio Receiver of the County of Washoe.

December 19, 1899.

To the above-named delinquent taxpayers, and to all owners of or claimants to the real estate and improvements thereon, or improvements when assessed separately, hereinbefore described, known or unknown, and on which the tax does not exceed three hundred dollars:

You are hereby notified that under and by virtue of an act of the Legislature of the State of Nevada entitled "An Act to Provide Revenue for the Support of the General Government of the State of Nevada," approved March 23, 1891, Chapter CXIX, Statutes 1891, amended February 27, 1893, Chapter LI, Statutes 1893, amended March 16, 1897, Chapter LXXXI, I will sell on the third Monday of January,

To wit, the 15th day of that month, 1900, in front of the Courthouse door of the county building, in Reno, Washoe county, Nevada, each of the above described tracts or parcels of land, with improvements thereon, or improvements when separately assessed, to recover the amount of tax and ten per cent delinquency, assessed to said defendants against said property for the fiscal year commencing January 1, 1899, and ending December 31, 1899, together with cost of publication of this notice, unless payment of said tax, delinquency and costs be made to me prior to said 15th day of January, 1900. The said sales will be made between the hours of 9 o'clock A.M. and 5 o'clock P.M., to wit: At the hour of 1 o'clock P.M., to the person taking the smallest quantity of property and paying the taxes and costs on the whole. Such sale is subject to redemption within six months after the date of the sale by payment of all such sums, with three per cent per month thereon from date of said sale until paid.

The above is a list of the names of persons to whom property is assessed, a description of the property upon which taxes are due, and the amount of tax that is due.

CHRISTMAS BELLS.

Before another issue of the JOURNAL will be made, Christmas will have come to make glad the hearts of the people. The festival directs the mind of the Christian world to the time when shepherds, attending their flocks by night, first saw the star that proclaimed by its appearance a Saviour born. The 25th day of December has been by usage for sixteen hundred years observed by Christians to commemorate the birth of the child Jesus whose life and death make up the tenets of Christian faith. The man who had not whereon to lay his head, through his teachings, became the chief corner-stone of that faith that has cheered the life of the weary on earth who believed in Him for more than nineteen hundred years, and each Christmas brings mankind to a more full belief in his divine mission.

The beautiful surroundings connected with the birth of Christ are lovely pictures to the devout Christian soul in all lands. These pictures have been materialized from the conceptions of the best artists, some of which have been the means of giving to their authors high standing in art. But the finer conceptions of the soul, that represent to the Christian mind the grandest ideals of the child when in a manger, may not be materialized, because they are of Him whose birth is commemorated by the Christians' Christmas festival, and come from source the conceptions of whose infinite mind may not be given by the most truthful display of outline in art.

The nations of the earth have been made alive by the pathos of "Peace on earth and good will to men," which makes the hearts of all Christians throb in unison on Christmas day. The day is observed in a more refined way than it was remembered by our ancestors in their strong manner of life; but the refining process has given a better and higher realization of the beauty and grandeur of its accompaniments.

The JOURNAL asks that the blessings of a living Christ may rest upon its readers and upon all the people on Christmas day, to aid the happiness that will come to them and to a Christian world.

The next issue of the JOURNAL will be on Wednesday morning, and, in the meantime, we hope Christmas bells will ring a merry Christmas to all.

THE PAST AND PRESENT OF LABOR

The Supreme Court of the United States has granted an injunction forbidding organized labor to employ pickets and other means that have been deemed lawful in strikes. United labor is depressed because of the position taken by the court which it should not be. When labor, in its present position, is reviewed in the light of the past, it is ascertained that the laboring man is a prince among men; but he does not occupy the position he will receive in the near future, when time is taken into relation with the slow methods of the last five centuries. He is not where he should be in the social make-up of the race, as he is still on the slave side of life.

Labor should not be discouraged when small matters occur that reflect the past condition of labor and do not possess any reflection of its future. We say does not possess any reflection of its future. Under the old laws of England the employer was authorized by law to box the ears of those he employed. The man who lived by toil was declared by law to be without heart and without honor, and not only in England was this so declared, but it was the rule all over Europe.

The working class in Germany brought upon that part of Europe a century's bloodshed to procure freedom. In many parts of the old world the man who labored with his hands was given a position in society that placed him much below the relation of a negro to society during slave times in our own country.

In the thirteenth, and fourteenth centuries it was considered in England beyond decency when men went over the country begging the lords of the earth to give them leave to toil, and to prevent such exhibitions of indecency by house labor a statute was enacted to suppress these efforts to procure the means to live. When the parliament of England had made a statute to prohibit the working people from seeking labor, another law was made directing that labor should take only such wages as was given in the part of the country where it was rendered, and it was lawful to force a man to work for another against his will, and when labor, under duress, was furnished the laborer could not demand more than the regular wages in the community or neighborhood.

Men who labored could be rounded up very much in the manner that the cowboy rounds up cattle, and when the round up was made the

could be, without consulting their volition, compelled to work.

In 1348 a disease termed the black death came to the shores of England and found prepared for its work of destruction among the working class an ill-fed people, who were, in all matters pertaining to life, fitted for the work of the destroyer.

The population of England at that time was four million and at the close of the Black Death's work it was reduced to two million. When the population was cut in halves, one dead and the other living, the working people having suffered the most, labor was scarce; and more stringent laws were passed in the interest of the ruling class against labor, and in 1351 Parliament by law fixed the price that labor should receive and directing that men must work whether they willed to do so or not, and a laborer was prohibited from leaving the parish to which he belonged to seek better wages than was furnished at his home.

The wages allowed by law would scarcely hold soul and body together, and those who went away under the pressure of hunger were branded in the forehead as a punishment for so doing. The gentle reminder of a brand with a red hot iron in the forehead is much more cruel than any injunction in the interest of capital and against labor by an United States court. The branding process had no more effect against labor in the fourteenth century than an injunction by an United States court will have at the close of the eighteenth century, which will be no effect whatever. It should be expected in all great movements that there will come up now and then something that will have an appearance to retard the movement.

Branding irons and injunctions are powerless against the final destiny of labor, and the time is not distant when the nobler part of man with its power for good will outflow the bounds the present social world has given it. These bounds are too narrow to give the future requirements to labor and the race the scope that nature in its wisdom intends it to occupy as a means that will bring the best results to mankind. When labor has worked out the problem of its dominion it will be ascertained to which class the men belong who are without heart and without honor.

The use of the hot iron was wiped out in England by combinations made by labor in the cities, and in Kent there was an uprising of laboring people who put to death every lawyer they could lay their hands upon, which was no doubt a blessing to labor and the country. A Kent mob could do excellent work in Nevada by hanging lawyers as it is ascertained that there are only a few who are not engaged in oppressing labor and the people, and these few could suffer martyrdom for the general good of the State.

There should be no embarrassment to labor by an injunction when the construction of courts and the unmaking of judges are in its hands by means of the ballot, should it proceed peaceably in its work, which it will do because of its intelligence, the remedy by injunction will cease, but the intelligence of labor must be used for the up-building of its rights in an active form at the ballot box.

When labor votes in an organized form for its protection and the advancement of its rights which are paramount to all rights because they include the souls of men. Government by injunction will, like the red hot iron, be heard from as a matter of history. When intelligent men who live by the sweat of their brows conclude to will, they will do so by voting intelligently, and when they do so vote labor's battle will be won and government by injunction will no more be used to destroy God given rights to man.

Victim of Typhoid.

Loretta Jackson, daughter of J. J. Jackson, died at Washoe City Friday, a victim of typhoid fever.

She was aged 18 years. The deceased was a student of the Nevada State University, and, while spending the school, she resided with Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Coblen.

Miss Jackson made many and true friends, who will grieve greatly to learn of her untimely death.

The funeral will take place today at Washoe City at 2 o'clock.

Quite Appetising.

Messrs. Block & Clause were decorating the windows of the Washoe lunch counter last evening. They made a success of their work.

The display is a attractive grouping of ducks, hams, coquettails, sucking pigs, domestic poultry, venison and other meats in endless variety.

The proprietors will serve their patrons with egg nog and Tom and Jerry Christ mas day.

Filing Affidavits.

Yester day a number of affidavits of labor, filed upon mining claims were filed upon record. Within the next week there will doubtless be big batches of these documents coming in. Proprietors not taking any chances on their property jumped this year. The mining outlook is too bright for that.

Christmas Music.

The following Christmas music will be sung in the Methodist church today. Morning: "Hallelujah to the King," (Gabriel); "Christmas Carol," (Willis). Evening: "Calm on the Listening Ear," (Ashford); "Watching Shepherds," (Schafer).

The Morn of Morns.

By William McClure Gotwaldt.

THERE'S a voice in the night—it is calling, calling;

I throw open my window wide.

There's a musical cadence falling, falling

Like the rippling of the tide:

The tuneful tide of a mossy-braed stream

That winds through a copse where I love to dream

In the quiet sunset time—

Dreaming, dreams sublime.

There's an orb in the sky—it is gleaming, gleaming

More bright than the morning star.

There's a glorious radiance streaming, streaming

From the measureless depths afar:

As pure as the sheen of the cold, white moon

And softer than day's last glance which soon

In twilight fades away—

Fast fading into gray.

Oh, what is this voice that I hear, I hear?

It thrills like a seraph song.

Oh, why do I tremble in fear, in fear,

And my reeling senses throng

With a host of emotions that torture like fire?

Hark! Hark! 'Tis the voice of the Heavenly choir:

"Peace and good will toward men;

Glory to God; Amen!"

Oh, what is this orb that I see, I see Afar in the eastern sky;

And why are my senses set free, set free

From the terrors that hovered nigh?

Joy, joy to the world! Let all sorrow take flight!

'Tis Bethlehem's star that illuminates the night—

The star of that wondrous morn

When the infant Christ was born.

The Last Production.

The Jessie Shirley company completed a very successful engagement last night.The bill at the matinee yesterday was "A Game of Wits."The evening play was "A Daughter of the Empire." This play was written especially for Miss Shirley.The troupe made a host of friends at their first visit to Reno. They played to good business. We are glad to learn that they will play a week in this city the coming year. Their work was pronounced the best of any week stand company that has held the board in the opera house this year.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs.
George Long of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night.
She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery.One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Announcement.

I have just received a complete line of working and dress shirts of the latest patterns and styles, which I will sell at bedrock prices. I wish to call particular attention to a working shirt I am handling. It is undoubtedly the best working shirt that was ever sold on the Coast for the money. Call and examine the same.I have all the latest patterns in golf and negligee shirts, in silks and madras cloths.I am pleased to announce that I have secured the agency of the Wheeler overall, famous on this Coast as being the best fitting and most durable overall on the market. It is riveted, triple-sewed and made of the heaviest and best denim. Try a pair and be convinced.Free employment office in connection with the store.

ALFRED NELSON.

Immense Crowd Assured.

This afternoon the committee, assisted by the members of the club, will add more to the decorations at the pavilion for their colonial and historical ball. Every detail is being properly attended to. The music will be a brass band, composed of fourteen of the best musicians obtainable. The floor will be in better condition for dancing than ever before.The novelty of the dance itself, the beautiful bicycle drill by young ladies and gentlemen and the prize cake walk will certainly draw a great crowd.

Bragg and Puett.

Last evening's edition contained another of those big double-headed scourgings of J. W. Puett, who got mixed up in a shooting affray out in Carlin.It seems strange that the Gazette editor should display such animosity in this direction. Is it possible that Mr.
Puett has been treating Mr. Bragg unkindly?

Bismarck's Iron Nerve.

Was the result of his splendid health, indomitable will and tremendous energy not found where Stomach Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25c at

STATE LAND OFFICE, CARSON CITY, NEVADA, November 29, 1890.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE STATE OF NEVADA, under the Act of Congress approved June 22, 1888 (Chap. 257), has filed in the United States Land Office at Carson City, Nevada, list No. 235 of lands selected under said Act, and has applied for a patent for said lands. A part of said list is open to the public for inspection, and a copy thereof, for descriptive purposes, has been posted in a convenient place in said United States Land Office for the inspection of all persons interested and the public generally.

Within the next sixty days following the date of this notice, protests or contests against the claim of said State of Nevada, or any tract or sub-division described in the list, on the ground that the same is more valuable for mineral than agricultural purposes, will be received by the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office at Carson City, Nevada, to report to the General Land Office at Washington, D. C.

The following are the sub-divisions, described to wit: SW 1/4, SE 1/4, SW 1/4, NE 1/4, R 18 E, M 2 D B & M—80 acres.
